Hi Phil,

Thank you for your patience. Ms. Kimble is still looking into the additional information you requested regarding the other entities, but I fear that we may be spinning our wheels. After further discussion, she simply does not have the resources to meet your demand of $10,000. Of course, the offer of $10,000 along with the hitsman's [REDACTED] could suffice information, still stands, but that is all she can afford. She is also willing to provide any [REDACTED] additional entity information that might be of value to you.

As for service of the S&C on the companies, she is still considering her options in terms of having us litigate the claims, so at this point I cannot accept service. I am available to discuss further anytime.

Hi Colin.

I have instructed my process server to resume efforts to serve the two corporate defendants. If Ms. Kimble is willing to provide a place and time to accept service for her two companies, that will save her some money as I will need to add the growing costs of service to what she owes now or at the conclusion of things.

Please advise.

Phil

I would be interested in knowing more and could adjust down a little if there is something good there.

1. When she received accounts from the person on the list through other entities not on the list, were the accounts being placed with her, or purchased by her?
2. When approximately did these other transactions occur?
3. If placed, then in what capacity were those other entities acting? business partners or co-owners of the accounts person/entity on the list? sub-placements? please elaborate
4. If purchased by her, same questions. were the sellers business partners? brokers? etc.

Phil,

While the person/entity that Ms. Kimble received the account from is on the list, apparently she has received other accounts from that person through other entities that are not on the list. Would that information be of value to you?

Colin,

As we continue efforts to resolve this, would you be willing and able to accept service for the corporate defendants? Because the Court is taking longer than normal to grant my motion for alternate service and I want to keep everyone on an appropriate timeline, I have instructed my process server resume efforts next week to serve the corporate defendants.

Please advise.

Phil,

I will discuss this with Ms. Kimble this afternoon. As I alluded to last week, however, she exhausted all of her resources to come up to $8,000, so we may not be able to get this done. By the same token, she likely does not have the resources to pay Phillips Lytle to litigate the claims, so she may not want me to accept service. I plan on speaking with her later this afternoon and will get back to you ASAP.
